

Annie Casselman

Tue, Aug 10,
1:25 PM (13
days ago)

Henry,

I know (daughters name) is unable to wear a mask given her disability, but I do believe it is important for her both developmentally and emotionally for her to see the faces around her. Because she is nonverbal, emotions on faces are her main form of communication.

She definitely needs to see her PCA's face. She needs a smile for comfort and love. She needs to see her classmates and know they too are smiling and welcoming.

We believe this will help her emotional and psychologically and would avoid possible delays in her development.

Thank you for listening.

Annie and Robert Casselman